Transkript

Lisa from Berlin is visiting her pen friend Anna in London. They talk about their days at school.

Lisa: Oh Anna, it's terrible. School starts so early in Germany! I always have to get up at 6.30 in the morning.

Anna: That's different in England. I don't have to get up until 7.45.

Lisa: Really? When does your school start then? My first lesson starts at 8 o'clock already.

Anna: Schools in England only start at 9 o'clock, which is really cool. But how do you get to school, Lisa? I always go by bike, and that only takes 15 minutes.

Lisa: I don't go by bike. I take the bus because the stop is right in front of my house.

Anna: Oh, I see. And when do you get out of school for the day?

Lisa: I usually finish school at 1.55 and after that I have lunch at home with my mum. Do you have lunch at school, Anna?

Anna: Oh yes, because we usually don't get out of school until 3.20 in the afternoon, and then I sometimes also go to a club after school.

Lisa: But when do you do your homework then?

Anna: Oh, I don't start my homework until about 5.30. And after dinner I always watch TV until about 10 o'clock in the evening.

Lisa: Really? I usually do my homework right after lunch at about 2.30 because after that I'm free to do what I want. Then I can meet some friends or play the piano.

Anna: Don't you like watching TV, Lisa?

Lisa: I only sometimes watch TV in the evening. Usually I go to bed at about 9 o'clock, and I always read in bed for a little while.

Anna: Oh, I don't read in bed because when I go to bed at about 10 o'clock I'm always too tired!
